

About the community presentation package

The Working in Australia community presentation package is for those who work with migrant and multicultural communities like you. The package has been designed to assist you to teach these community members about Australian workplace laws. Anyone can use these resources - you don't need to be an expert.

The ESOS National Code 2018 requires education providers to provide information about workplace rights to their international students. The presentation package will assist you in your compliance with the Code.

The package includes:

- Working in Australia presentation slides:
 - a comprehensive version, which includes detailed speaking notes and optional slides that give an overview of the FWO website. This presentation gives you the ability to tailor a presentation for various levels of audience
 - a shorter version, also with detailed speaking notes, to be used with our Working in Australia video. This presentation does not contain the FWO website overview and is specifically tailored for students and newly arrived migrant workers
- Working in Australia video
- Fair Work Information Statement
- A guide to starting a new job
- A guide to hiring new employees

The FWO's free Train the Trainer Session

The FWO is piloting a free Train the Trainer Session for education providers to learn about the community presentation package on Wednesday 08 August 2018 at our Sydney office. Tickets to this session are sold out.

If you wish to attend a similar session later in the year either in Sydney or in a different city, please express your interest and nominate your preferred city by emailing Community.Engagement@fwo.gov.au.
